HORSE AND TRACK.

There is evidence of renewed activity in all lines of business, the horse business included.

George Leavitt says he does not care whether George Wilkes has a horse or not. He needs no pedigree, for we all know what his offspring can do.

Says Scott McCoy: "The fewer horses a man has, if they are good, the more he will make on them, and if they are not first-class he had better have none."

John Splan is famous for his common sense remarks in horse sense, as much as he for his skill as a rosemaster. Here is one of his truths: "A good big horse is better than a good little one."

A stallion that is not worth advertising is not worth breeding to, for it clearly goes to show that the man who owns him has lost all faith in him or he would let the public know just what he had.

The supply of horses in Kentucky has decreased $5,000 within the last year. The other States have most likely done the same thing, therefore it is only a question of a short time when there will be a scarcity of horses in America.

Cavanaugh Bros.' last special sale in Boston was very successful. Fearless M., three-year-old record 2:40 by Mollon, 2:20, brought $340, the highest price of the day. Lady Stuart, by Daniel Lamont, was knocked down for $225.

The largest sale of horseflesh for Sunnyside stables for some time are those of Mattie Russell, sold to New York parties for $2,200; Amber to Hall, of Atlanta House, Boston, for $1,500; Brown Rolfe, full brother to Aubine 2:18, with a record of 2:33, sold in 2:26, to Samuel Corcoran, of Pine Grove Stock Farm, Hallowell, for $1,300.

There never was, and never will be a time when first-class horses would pay well for their raising. They are more in demand now at fancy prices than for several years. The majority of people have stopped raising them; the natural outcome of which will be an increase in prices. There never was a time when such a horse as Beau Brox' Kentucky stood for as low a service fee as $10 to insure a live foal. He stands to-day without a rival in this section, when breeding, speed, size and other things that go to make a good stock horse, are taken into consideration.

A Peach.

Dr. Channey M. Dewey, the famous post-prandial orator, has a flavor of the perennial about him. He is studying the art of "How to Grow Old Gracefully." He thinks he has found the recipe. Anxious to share this discovery with his American friends, he takes a press representative into his confidence and thus announces himself:

"Join in the children's games, be a partner in the dance, romp the fastest and turn the quickest in the Virginia reel or the country dance; go up to the old college and sit down and light your pipe and sing college songs; take the children to the theater and howl with them at the roaring farce, and laugh with them at the comedy and cry with them at the tragedy; be their confidant in their love affairs, and, if they are not equal to it, write their love letters, and never stop writing some for yourself!"

Very good, Channey! However one may doubt the efficacy of your beautiful recipe, one can not question the delightful sentiment at the base of it. If you practice what you preach the Bowers boys rightfully dubbed you "a peach."—Exchange.

China's the Place Now.

Young man, go to China! That is the advice that is prompted by the awakening there occasioned by the treaty of peace. If it has the anticipated result, China will become a glorious place for young, bright men, engineers, miners and railroad promoters. It will be a country, almost the largest on earth, suddenly opened to the world, demanding the substantial things of civilization.—Boston Herald.

In a duel between jealous rivals for the hand of a Mexican girl, one man was killed and the other badly injured.

BITING

Was Stewart's Sarcasm

In His Letter to President Cleveland.

Congratulating Him For His Efforts

In Placing His Foreign as Well as Financial Policy

Under the Wise Management of Her Majesty.

A BREEZY SCREED.

Sen. Stewart, of Nevada, last week addressed to the President an open letter that deals with current questions in a breezy and Western fashion. The following is the full text of the letter:

MR. PRESIDENT: When I last wrote you I did not suppose that I should be called upon so soon to renew my congratulations for your conspicuous bravery in promoting the policy of the mother country. I did not then realize that your beneficent policy, so then extended beyond the extermination of obnoxious blunderbusses and laborers who oppose your "sound money and safe currency."

But it now appears that your wise and patriotic statesmanship is not confined to the limits of sound British financial policy for the people of the United States, but includes your cordial co-operation in the policy of conquest and dominion for the mother country. The joint success of yourself and Lord Kimberly in planting the British flag and extending British rule over Nicaragua is admired and applauded by every loyal subject of the Queen, and will secure for you the love and respect of all the Englishmen.

Your great and magnanimous nature will not be disturbed by the unreasonable complaints of any of your own countrymen who continue to cling to the narrow and unreasonable prejudices which the descendants of the rebels of 1776 still entertain against that great and good Government which is still willing to protect us, notwithstanding the ill will and ingratitude of our deluded ancestors. Your exalted position enables you to see the great advantage of a

COINAGE OF BRITISH NAVAL STATIONS.

Guarding our exposed seaports on two oceans, and the great security and commercial advantages the Nicaragua Canal will afford the British jurisdiction. Your clear vision spans the continent and extends to the far off plains of the Pacific, and you fully comprehend the complete protection that the navy of Great Britain, with headquarters at Honolulu, would be to the Pacific Coast. The people of the United States will view with much satisfaction the preparations which you and Lord Kimberly are making to present the claims of the British and American subjects, who in the interest of the mother country conspired to overthrow the Republican Government of Hawaii. The fact that the conspirators were unsuccessful aggravates the crime of the republic maintaining its constitutional Government and furnishes you and Lord Kimberly, amply justification for demanding impossible reparation to make an excuse for planting the British rule over the only remaining outpost in the Pacific where a military establishment by an unfriendly power would menace the commerce of the United States.

"In carrying out this patriotic project you will undoubtedly exercise the same economy that you did in Nicaragua and avail yourself of the kindness of Great Britain to furnish the ships for the expedition, which will capture the coveted prize. The object lesson of your broad and comprehensive statesmanship is already instructive. When you have fully secured the protection of England for our extended sea coast of both oceans and the construction of the Nicaragua canal at the expense of the United States for the benefit of Great Britain your economy will be appreciated. When the trouble and expense created by the unjustifiable wars and confusions of your predecessors against our mother country are compared with your wise and conciliatory policy the ingratitude of the American people will

SHOCK THE SENSIBILITIES

Of all loyal subjects of the British crown, and they will fully appreciate the wisdom and patriotism of your Administration. The union of interests which you have secured between Great Britain and her once rebellious colonies shows the folly of an expensive foreign policy in dealing with the mother country when all our material interests can be so well protected by her own generous imperial power. Although the policy of relying on British statesmanship is not new, you have enlarged, illustrated and carried into effect that policy in such a manner as to make the American people realize that the sovereign power to coin money and manage the financial policy of our own is inconsistent with that brotherly love and cordial submission which we owe that country that gave birth to our ancestors, and to those fostering care we are indebted for life, with such liberty as the mother country will generously bestow.

"Thrice your predecessors sent delegates to British International Conferences to consult and receive instructions as to what financial legislation the United States might adopt without interfering with the commercial supremacy of Great Britain, and thence our delegates have been instructed to legislate as to enhance the holdings of British creditors by limiting the supply of money of ultimate payment to gold alone. Your bold and vigorous action in carrying into effect the instructions which our delegates received from the mother country establishes beyond controversy your courage and your fidelity to our benefactors on the other side of the Atlantic. The miserable suggestion that your policy is dictated by a London syndicate of money changers is fully answered by the fact that the people of England are subject to the same dictation, and that what is good enough for Englishmen must be good enough for their unworthy descendants on this side of the Atlantic. There is great promise for a glorious future for the United States in what you have already accomplished in

SECURING BRITISH PROTECTION

Against all foreign powers, particularly against the powerful and hostile Republics of Mexico and South America, and also in securing her Majesty's management and control of our domestic financial policy. In times past our tariff legislation has created quite as much injurious and unnatural friction between the mother country and ourselves as our financial legislation did before you induced England to resume her ancient and rightful jurisdiction in that respect. May we indulge the hope that your fidelity to the British Crown has secured you such influence as will enable you to induce the mother country to take charge of and regulate our commercial relations in such a manner as will remove all the unpleasant and unnatural disagreements between the two countries with regard to tariff legislation.

Why should England be more unwilling to regulate our customs duties than to manage our foreign relations and control our financial policy? You have made great progress in re-establishing the "statu quo" which existed prior to the rash and unreasonable conduct of our ancestors in 1776, and in abrogating the unnatural restrictions found in that instrument of insubordination known as the constitution of the United States. The folly of the provisions in that instrument, inaugurating an independent financial policy, is no more apparent than the wicked and absurd provision authorizing duties on imports. Your success in eliminating from the constitution the insidious assumption of an independent financial policy for the United States inspires a reasonable hope that you may be able in the near future not only to render absolute that other preposterous assumption found in the pretended authority in the afore said insubordinate instrument to raise revenues by duties on imports, but also to remove every other unnatural obstruction to the

LEGITIMATE AUTHORITY OF GREAT BRITAIN

To manage and control our domestic affairs from the same magnanimous and disinterested motives that she now manages and controls our foreign affairs. The people of those misguided colonies look to you and you alone, for deliverance from all the calamities resulting from the misconduct of our rebellious ancestors, by requiring of us only such acts of penitence and submission as will heal the wounds, remove the animosities, and restore the cordial relations which once existed and still ought to exist between people of the same blood and lineage. Do not be discouraged by the "cray diamond" of unthinking "cranks" for an independent financial policy, or an independent foreign policy for the United States, but continue to regard such unreasonable considerations as resulting from narrow prejudice, engendered by such rebels, fanatics and Anarchists as Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackson, Lincoln and their deluded followers. Come to be astonished at the unreasonable opposition of the Senate to your beneficent policy and continue to treat with contempt the vile insinuations of improper motives in discounting bonds to the Reichschilds to secure protection and prosperity for our beloved country. Keep an eye single to the glory and renown and the imperishable name you will leave to posterity by achieving a union of 325,000,000 of English speaking people under the benign and unselfish rule of the British Crown.

Yours Respectfully,
Wm. M. STEWART.

Dun's weekly review of trade says that business begins May in better condition than at any other time since the break-down in May, 1893. The volume is smaller now than it was when, but it is enlarging instead of shrinking.

Hon. Henry J. Dixon, of Henderson, Gov. Brown's brother-in-law, has been appointed Private Secretary to the Governor.

Cook county, 12, Democrats declared for free coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

Secretary Carlisle has written a letter in which he says: "I never made speech or written a letter in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, or in fact at any other ratio, and the quotation which is so often made from the speech to which you refer was a denunciation of a policy which would destroy, by legislation or otherwise, from three-sevenths to one-half of the metallic money of the world," as is shown by the speech itself. At that time the silver dollar had been dropped entirely from our coinage, and was by law a legal tender only to the amount of $5. The act of 1873 corrected this, and since then we have coined $120,000,000 full legal tender silver dollars. Silver is not now demoralized in this country as it is in England, Germany and other countries, but is, as you know, in constant use among the people as full legal tender money."

Judge Sanfley just before the adjournment of his court at Danville on Saturday granted John Hamner a new trial. Hamner was given a 21 years sentence for killing Mac Moore. The Judge had positively refused to entertain the defendant's Attorney's motion for a new trial, but when Hamner when brought before him for sentence he made such a strait-laced statement that the Judge abruptly changed his mind and granted him another chance. Hamner is a mechanic and killed the son of a wealthy farmer, whom Hamner alleges, invaded his home several times. There were no witnesses to the killing, which took place in the woods near Hamner's house late one stormy night in February. Hamner gave himself up to the authorities the night of the killing.

Ex-Governor Buckner, through the medium of an interview in the Courier-Journal presents his views on the silver coinage. His language is clear, vigorous and to the point. Refusing to take into consideration any possible effect of his statements upon his chances for election as United States Senator, he declares himself unequivocally against the free coinage of silver. He is in favor of both gold and silver, but believes that an attempt to maintain a double standard must result in monometallism, and that bi-metalism is assured only by adherence to a single standard.

The Democrats in the First Illinois Commission district held county convention Saturday to send delegates to the Owsheboro convention, May 15. Instructions were distributed between six candidates. A warm contest is anticipated.

John C. Wood was in Paris Monday shaking hands with his Republican brethren, hoping to get the instructions of Bourbon county for Railroad Commissioner. We would be glad to see John get the instructions of his party.

To Escape Violence.

Milton Henderson was lodged in jail at Princeton on Friday, having been brought from Muhlenberg county to escape mob violence. He is charged with criminal assault on his fifteen-year-old daughter. The act was committed about three years ago. From some cause it was kept secret until the slaying of the grand jury just adjourned, when a bill was found. As soon as this was learned the citizens of the community became very much enraged, and violence was feared, so the Circuit Judge ordered him taken to Princeton.

That was a terrible retribution that overtook the guilty ones in the Gordon-Brown killing at Louisville last Tuesday. Notwithstanding the unwritten law that gives a man the right to slay him who enters his family and destroys forever its peace, we grow sick at the bloody butcher who is not satisfied with killing the aggressor, but turns his weapon upon the weak, though guilty, woman and kills her also.

Grievous were the sins of the pair thus bloodily ushered into the presence of an offended God, and grievously have they paid the penalty of their guilt. Who can sound the depth of sorrow and the awfulness of the grief of those who loved them, in spite of their sins? God pity the suffering ones, for their anguish is beyond the reach of human sympathy.

The guilty ones have paid their debt and we may well say, "peace to their ashes." But from the brutal butcher, no matter what his provocation, we can only turn with horror and disgust.

The Clark county officials built a post-house on Saturday some three miles out from Winchester for the purpose of placing in it the negro who developed a case of small-pox in the Winchester jail. The residents of the neighborhood met on Saturday night, tore down the structure and burned the debris, and at last accounts were guarding the road with shotguns. They are determined, if they can prevent it, that the post-house shall not be located in their midst. The authorities have erected a tent and placed the small-pox patient in it.

The examining trial of Fulton Gordon for the killing of his wife and Arch Brown at Louisville is to be held to-day if Gordon is able to attend court. He was released on bond after his arrest, but has been so prostrated that he faints when the tragedy is mentioned in his presence.

An unusual number of cloud-bursts are reported to have occurred Saturday and Sunday in Eastern Kentucky and portions of Indiana and Ohio.

William Strode, sixty years old, committed suicide with a razor in a pasture near Lexington Sunday.

Agricultural Notes.

Be sure to make a good job of plowing the corn the first time.

The farmer who raises what most others are neglecting frequently makes it pay.

Try a patch of peas and oats sown together, feed the cows and horses should a drouth cut the grass short.

Let the boys have a piece of ground on which to plant and grow for their use or profit whatever crop they may desire.

Several experiment stations have concluded from tests made, that two inches is about the right depth to plow corn.

Get the start of the weeds and then plow the corn often enough and only deep enough to keep the weeds down, and to keep a loose surface to act as a mulch.

There is no excuse for farmers going to town in their working clothes. A farmer is under as much obligation to dress neatly as the doctor or lawyer.---Journal of Agriculture.

An exchange very aptly says that because the father was compelled to work himself almost to death when he was young is no sort of reason why his child should be made to work himself to death.

If the soil is not finely pulverized, it will pay to run the roller ahead of the cultivator the first plowing. If the first cultivator leaves any weeds in the hill they are very hard to get at except with the hand or hoe.

Farmers would do well to try an acre or two of Kaffir corn as an experimental crop. Mr. J. G. Trimble was exhibiting a sample of the Kaffir corn that he brought from Oklahoma to some friends a few days ago. It is said to be a most excellent and a very grateful feed for stock. It would be well worth the while of some of our stockmen to investigate the merits of the Kaffir.

Seeds to the Pound.

The Illinois experiment station has decided by actual count the number of seeds per pound in 15 varieties of cereals. The following figures give the result: Seeds in one pound of red-top, 4,136,000; blue grass, 2,185,000; timothy, 1,421,000; orchard grass, 457,000; tall meadow oats grass, 155,000; white clover, 863,000; crimson trefoil, 125,000; mammoth red clover 364,000; common red clover, 328,000; alfalfa, 677,000.

China's Emperor has decided to ratify the treaty of peace with Japan, which will be done to-morrow. The embankments of a river were cut by Imperial edict to prevent a possible Japanese advance on Peking. Miles of territory were inundated and the Chinese were drowned by hundreds in the flood.

HEART DISEASE!

Fluttering, No Appetite, Could Not Sleep, Wind on Stomach.

"For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought that every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I could not even a room without resting. My husband induced me to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and am happy to say it has cured me. I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. Its effect was truly marvelous."

MRS. HARRY E. STARR, Potomac, Pa.
Dr. Miles' Heart Cure is sold on a positive guarantee that the medicine will cure all cases of heart disease. It is sold in 6 bottles for $6, or 25 bottles for $25. It is sold by Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Struck by Lightning.

Trav. Bourne, a negro man, about 50 years of age, was at work for Mr. Richard Wilson on his place near town, on Wednesday, when a thunder-storm broke over the field. The hands that were with Bourne sought shelter in a barn, while he took refuge under a white oak tree. In a few minutes one of the companion saw lightning strike the tree and the old man fell. He called to Mr. Wilson, who ran through the rain and dragged the poor negro some fifty yards into the open field. It was found that Bourne, who was leaning against the tree, was burned over a spot about the size of the palm of a man's hand just where his shoulder came in contact with the tree and a streak down the body to the foot where the fluid entered the ground. At first he was supposed to be dead, but later he revived and may recover. His suffering was frightful when consciousness first returned and it was with difficulty rescued that he given him.

The wedding of Miss Sallie B. More and J. H. Huber is announced to take place at Fern Bank, O., during the first week of June. Miss More has made hosts of friends during her recent journey, who will extend their best wishes. She is a sister of Mrs. Patton Griffiths and Mr. S. F. B. More, so well known in railroad circles. Mr. Huber is a son of the late J. H. Huber, cashier of the People's Bank, and is associated in business with Maury and Dodd architects—Courier-Journal.

Miss More is a beautiful and an accomplished young woman who has a wide acquaintance here made during her frequent visits to her sister, Mrs. W. O. Chennault. Her many friends here, like those elsewhere, join in extending their best wishes.

There was a suit in the Circuit Court last week of Mr. — Bailey, against the Ovingville & Mt. Sterling Turnpike Company. Mr. Bailey claims that his uncle subscribed and paid in $1,500 for stock 85 years ago and the suit was for the stock and dividends on same. The books of the company bear no record of the stock. He won his suit.

Is Communication With The Planets Possible?

Do men live in any planet but our own? Are they mentally and physically formed like ourselves? If such beings do exist, will it be possible to hold communication with them across the millions of miles that separate us? These questions, so purely theoretical as of special interest at the present time.

We find in our daily newspapers the following item: "The probate will of Madame Annie-Emilie-Clara Gorguet, widow of M. Mare Gorguet, deceased on the thirteenth of June, 1890 at Pau, No. 9 Montpencier street, contains the following clause:

"I bequeath to the Academy of Sciences of the Institute of France, 300,000 francs to establish a prize which will be called after the name of my son, Pierre Gorguet; this will be given without exclusion of nationality to anyone who will find some way of communication with a star, I mean, that a signal shall be made to a star and an answer received therefrom. I exclude the moon, which appears to be sufficiently known.

"If the solution of this is not obtained in five years, the interest on this legacy will be allowed to accumulate during this time, and will form a prize to be bestowed in the name of my son, to any French or foreign savant who shall have made any real or valuable progress in the knowledge of the planets of our solar system, either in the relations of the planets to the earth or by means of improved instruments of physical science and optical instruments, or by any other method of inspection or investigation.

"If the prizes are not awarded at the end of ten years, the Academy shall have the right to give two prizes from the interest on the capital, in the name of my son and with the same conditions."

The Academy decided to accept the legacy, because, until the day that the prize is earned, it is authorized to recompense and aid physical astronomy and photometry with the interest. It had already accepted a legacy of 100,000 francs for the physician who shall find a remedy as efficacious for cholera as quinine, and quinine is for intermittent fever. In the meantime the interest is available for any useful medical work undertaken in this direction. It had also accepted funds for a prize of 50,000 francs for the cure of phthisis. The Pasteur Institute, according to the wish of the testator, receives annually the interest from this.

In order to communicate with the adjacent stars, the means pointed out by the Academy by a savant given to chimeras might be attempted. If we construct a gigantic geometrical figure like the inscription of a dragon inside a circle, and if the moon or Mars answer by some corresponding form, we might infer the existence in these planets of thinking beings having geometrical to the. The dimensions necessary for such figures make it hardly reasonable to expect their production on the moon and less so on Mars or Venus. The problem can not, in the present state of science, be practically attacked.

M. Camille Flammarion, the learned astronomer who published two years ago a complete book on the planets Mars and its habitable conditions, gives us some valuable information. He has always been one of the most earnest defenders of the plurality of habitable worlds.

"It is fortunate that the Academy accepted the legacy," said M. Flammarion, "for it would have gone to a scientific association in the United States. It is evident that communication with Mars is not at present a near possibility, but a hundred years ago who would not have considered real prize for the inventor of a telephone as chimerical? Lenses a meter in thickness have been constructed, those of 1.50 m. will soon be constructed. This would have been thought impossible a century ago. The construction of optical glasses will be perfected. It has been ascertained that in Mars there are luminous points elevated about 10,000 meters above the surface of the planet. Those may be snowy peaks, or possibly signals. To answer these by geometrical figures, we should have to make them about the size of Sicily."

Incessant variations are observed in the seas, lakes and canals of Mars. It is a world one might expect to find essentially "like" us. With an atmosphere lighter than ours, having constituents of red dirt and seas of nearby the same area of bluish tint. Mars appears as if it should be habitable like the earth, and by a race older than our own.

The problem of interstellar communication has been broached by Chas. Crow, an original thinker and ingenious inventor. According to his ideas, there is no reason for despairing of the near solution. Parabolic mirrors have, like lenses, the power of focusing light. The rays instead of being dispersed, are grouped in pencils and traverse space without being weakened except from the opacity of the traversed medium. This is according to theory, but is never wholly realized in practice. The pencils are always conical, but to what extent? This is a point in doubt.

M. Charles Crow suggests that such a pencil be reflected at the point where it is just a meter in diameter, a pure white surface. It is possible to give such an intensity to an electric lamp that this surface could be as well lighted as by a ray sunlight. The pencil dilates afterwards in proportion as it advances into space. M. Crow admits that when it reaches the neighboring star, its diameter is twenty millions of meters and its intensity four hundred trillions times weaker than at the point where the white surface was intercepted. We allow that the light with which the planet is found enveloped is very feeble, but it cannot be disregarded if it is properly observed. Just as the optical instrument prevents the dispersion of the rays at the departure, it can concentrate these rays on its arrival. In a telescope the rays scattered over the whole surface of the objective are concentrated in the focus. Neptune is visible through a glass of medium power, and yet the light that comes to the earth from it is more than two hundred trillions times weaker than a ray of sunlight, that is, only two times stronger than the light of the signal we have just imagined. This signal has then, he said, nothing chimerical in it.

We do not understand, however, why Crow crosses this conical basis of the pencil at only twenty millions of meters in diameter. Where this basis would be sufficient, he foresees increasing numbers of lamps.

Pre-supposing that men have realized this project, Charles Crow decides upon the system of signals that it would be necessary to adopt, a very simple system of numeration utilizing all the possible arrangements of the signal: a single light, a double light, a triple light. This system would permit numbers to be sent to the planet, then through numbers forms, through forms. Geographical characters and through these the exchange of the most complex ideas.

It is clear that this second problem is much more easy than the first which requires a whole series of chemical and technological discoveries. The problem of interstellar communication may be opened in an unexpected way and not through optics—Katherine Hager, in Popular Science News.

KILLED THEM BOTH!

Fulton Gordon Surprises His Wife

and Arch Dixon Brown

In a Room Together and Slays Them Both.

FEARFUL AND BLOODY TRAGEDY

Tuesday, about noon, Fulton Gordon, of Louisville, shot and killed his wife, Mrs. Nellie Gordon, and Archibald Dixon Brown, oldest son and Private Secretary of his father, Gov. John Young Brown, in a negro drive on West Madison street, Louisville. It seems Brown and Mrs. Gordon came to the house of Lucy Smith about 11 o'clock and asked for a room. They were shown to a front room on stairs. In half an hour Gordon also came and wanted a room. He was given one just under the room that Brown and Mrs. Gordon occupied. The woman who had answered Gordon's ring, went back to her work and very soon heard nine pistol shots. The only living witness to that awful tragedy in that upper room is the murderer Gordon. He entered the room, shot Brown as he lay on the bed; Brown sprang up but fell to the floor, then arose and made for his pistol which lay on a dresser in the far part of the room. This Brown secured, but in the meantime he had been shot by Gordon some five or six times.

Brown managed to fire at Gordon once, but Gordon, who had emptied his pistol, grappled with the wounded man, wrenched his pistol from his hand, and fired a final shot that instantly killed Brown. Gordon then fired upon his wife, who ran from the room and down the steps to a back porch and fell dead upon the cellar door. Brown was clad in only his undershirts and socks and Mrs. Gordon had on only chemise and stockings. Gordon gave himself up and was committed to jail.

Brown was shot several times and Mrs. Gordon once. Gordon was not touched, though he was utterly prostrated after the butchery. He failed a number of times at the mere mention of the affair.

Mrs. Gordon was Miss Nellie Bush, daughter of Mrs. Cordelia Bush, who was formerly State Librarian. She married Gordon some ten years ago.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

One person out of every eight in the almost thirty thousand population of York, Penn., is a Christian Endeavorer.—Golden Rule.

A number of the Junior Society of the Ashland Presbyterian Society, were graduated into the Senior Society recently, with an impressive ceremony. They were commended to the care of the Senior Society by their Superintendent, and received by the President of the Senior Society.

Rev. W. D. Rice, of Augusta, a prominent Christian Endeavorer, has been very ill with typhoid fever, but is much better and hopes to be able to fill his place on the program at the State Convention.

The following facts concerning the Convention, have been sent out by the President and Secretary of the State Union. Let every Endeavorer read them carefully:

One more we desire to call your attention to the Great Annual Convention to be held in our beautiful city of Louisville, May 14-25-26, 1895.

Never before in the history of the Christian Endeavor movement in Kentucky has the progress been so great, the Endeavorer enthusiasm so high and wide-spread and the work so earnest and active.

The Sixth Annual Convention will be a tidal wave of Endeavorer enthusiasm. Let us place ourselves upon the topmost crest that we may see the power and glory of our King.

Every Endeavorer in the State of Kentucky, is cordially invited and earnestly requested to attend the Convention. You are not required to bring any credential or certificate, other than your smiling face and a desire to do good. The devoted Louisville Endeavorers will meet you at the city Railway Stations, steamboat landings and welcome you, take charge of you and entertain you during your stay in the city free of charge. Consider the matter, make up your mind to go and send your name at once to Miss Lucie B. Smither, No. 1508 New Broadway, Louisville, Ky., Secretary of Entertainment Committee.

The music of the Convention will be one of its most important and inspiring features. Under the able and direction of Prof. H. W. Dohmann, of Louisville, who will be remembered as the musical director at the Kentucky Sunday School Convention of 94 at Louisville, this feature of the Convention will indeed be a great success.

Our State colors are Royal Purple and White. In your Society banners and badges, let these colors predominate, and come with badges displayed and banners unfurled.

Under the management of Dr. W. P. Banta, of Louisville, arrangements have been made with all railroads in Kentucky for a rate of one fare for round trip to all persons attending the Convention, no certificates required. Tickets will be on sale at all rail and stations in Kentucky May 23 and 24, good returning till May 27. See your railroad agent or write to Dr. W. P. Banta, Louisville, Ky., for full information, and leave your homes in time to reach Louisville Thursday afternoon or evening and attend the great preliminary meeting to be held Thursday evening.

It has always been the aim of the State Executive Committee to carry on the State work with as little expense as possible. No salaries are paid to any officers or workers. But there are necessary and unavoidable expenses for correspondence, advertising, etc., that cannot be dispensed and bills must be paid. In former years our State work has been greatly hindered from a want of funds—let us have this difficulty to contend with in the future. A small contribution from every Society in the State will furnish ample funds to carry on the work. Will you kindly instruct your delegates to pledge the amount your Society is willing to give for the State work during the coming year? This convention is intended to promote Godly living and Christian usefulness. If you come in a spirit of devoted, it will benefit you.

"Whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing, ye shall receive."

Mr. L. B. Ringold's two-year-old race, Semper Igo, at Lexington last week made some good races, winning in one and three in another, while his stride and being near the string did not have a chance to gain his loss. He won the admiration of horsemen and without accident is destined to make a great winner. He is in Louisville this week and faves are on him.

Under the management of Dr. W. P. Banta, of Louisville, arrangements have been made with all railroads in Kentucky for a rate of one fare for round trip to all persons attending the Convention, no certificates required. Tickets will be on sale at all rail and stations in Kentucky May 23 and 24, good returning till May 27. See your railroad agent or write to Dr. W. P. Banta, Louisville, Ky., for full information, and leave your homes in time to reach Louisville Thursday afternoon or evening and attend the great preliminary meeting to be held Thursday evening.

It has always been the aim of the State Executive Committee to carry on the State work with as little expense as possible. No salaries are paid to any officers or workers. But there are necessary and unavoidable expenses for correspondence, advertising, etc., that cannot be dispensed and bills must be paid. In former years our State work has been greatly hindered from a want of funds—let us have this difficulty to contend with in the future. A small contribution from every Society in the State will furnish ample funds to carry on the work. Will you kindly instruct your delegates to pledge the amount your Society is willing to give for the State work during the coming year? This convention is intended to promote Godly living and Christian usefulness. If you come in a spirit of devoted, it will benefit you.

"Whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer believing, ye shall receive."

THE ARMY WORMS

Creating Havoc Among the Crops of Woodford.

VERMILION, Ky., May 5.—The worms continue to do great damage to crops in Woodford and adjoining counties, and entire fields of hemp, corn, oats and clover have been destroyed.

W. H. Alexander, a prominent farmer living near Fort Springs, says that his son was out on the Lexington pike at 2 o'clock this morning and passed over a black spot in the road forty feet wide, that seemed to be moving.

The boy and his father got lanterns and returned to the spot and found the dust all mashed down, as if something had passed over it. Following the trail to a hemp field they found millions of black worms devouring the plants.

The entire field was almost devastated by six o'clock. Mr. Alexander says the worm is a species entirely new to this section, being neither the army nor cut worm. They travel in great bodies by night and do all the damage in the dark, disappearing into the ground as soon as the sun rises. The farmers in this section are very much wrought up over their appearance.

With a return of reasonable property to agriculture the demand for wheels by the rural classes will soon exceed that of the cities, and sales reach proportions scarcely dreamed of now. Nowhere is the wheel more needed, than for pleasure and convenience, than on the farm. The farmer constantly wants to send to town for his mail or on light errands, and young people like to go; but during the season when farm work is progressing his horses have enough to do in the field, and they cannot be run to town; so he has to go without what he wants—unless imprudently used—until he gets a chance to go or send. The seasons of work on farm are the seasons of the bicycles, and with one on the farm the farmer is immediately placed in touch with town, for the wheel and its rider will always be at his service, if the roads will permit. Country life is lonelier to young people. They like to visit and to go to town. The bicycle affords them the quickest and most enjoyable means; and when they can buy a good stout machine for a reasonable price they will do so if they have money or as soon as they can get it.—Farm Implement News.

Cut-Worms in Mercer.

The cut-worm has done much damage throughout this county. Mr. T. Ford Curran, on the M. W. Curry farm, has had a field of oats almost entirely destroyed; and we have heard of a field of hemp that has been ruined and has to be plowed up for corn. In the Salvisa neighborhood they are reported as traveling from one farm to another and that the turnip root was black with them. The army worms can be seen near the suburbs on Lexington road. They are legion.—Harrodsburg Sayings.
